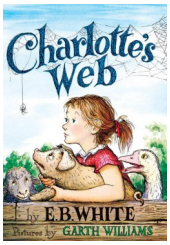
This Week…

English



This week we started reading our new book of the term, Charlotte's Web– the story of an amazing friendship between a girl and a piglet, and the astounding loyalty of a spider called Charlotte. The children made predictions based on the front cover and started writing a diary entry from the perspective of the main character– Fern.

In comprehension, they learned about tsunamis: how they are generated, how they behave and, most importantly, what to do if you suspect one might be on its way! As the text was science based and contained lots of unfamiliar words, we focused on word meanings and how to estimate them from context.

Mathematics

The children have worked really hard on the multiplication this week and have learnt their 6 ,7 and 9 times tables by making connections.

Science

We continued with our topic, focusing on how we hear. The girls learned how sound travels through different materials and began planning an experiment to test which materials are best at muffling sound.

Religious Education

The girls learned the background of why Hindus celebrate Navrati: a nine- night festival of the triumph of good over evil.
